Ladies and gentlemen, tonight, we are going to address some interesting and important issues. This might be obvious since we are in a time of great concerns which require of deep thoughts.

We are part of a powerful modern civilization. Much progress has been made in Physics, Chemistry, Medicine, Engineering, and other fields. We have built a prodigious civilization, sent powerful spaceships to the moon and the space, and people have walked on the moon; what is more, unmanned space shuttles have been sent to Venus.

There have been missions to Mars and it has been said that around the year of 1985 the United States is going to launch a manned atomic rocket to Mars, we will have to wait and see the results regarding this matter of course. Deep down this is fascinating and extraordinary as the mission accomplished by the television when thanks to the broadcast we were able to follow the steps of the first moon landing. Because of it, much was learned about the moon and its history.

It was believed that the moon was a piece of land reflected outer space, but carbon 14 tests were irrefutable, so the conclusion that the Moon was before the Earth was reached. This conclusion per se is amazing; moreover, as a result we it was known that those intellectual men who claimed that the Earth was a piece of land reflected outer space, were unfortunately wrong. Let me insist on this matter; the tests of carbon 14 and the profound analysis of lunar pebbles indicated that the Theory about the moon being a part of land was erroneous.

As we are in a time of great scientific excitement, we ought to, at least for a moment, ponder profoundly about it.

You are here because you have questions. I am also here because of the questions I have. And you have come willing to listen and I am eager to talk to you. Between you and I there must be an exchange of ideas, we have gathered precisely for that reason; to study many things and to analyze several important matters of interest to you and me. Therefore, I invite you to analyze these exciting issues with me.

We are in a continuous struggle to conquer the space, and we are doing so with a good intention, our scientist dream and labor to reach the goal of making it possible for mankind to conquer other worlds. Nevertheless, under no circumstances should we be blind by so much charm. It is imperative that we investigate on our own the information, this way we will probably avoid being misled by hoaxes.

Much has been said about these times, and you know it and about the spaceships from other worlds, that is right, a very interesting kind of antithesis concerning rockets fired by Tyrian and Trojan to the moon or Venus, or even Mars, and spaceships coming from other worlds.

There is some skepticism that leads nowhere, because there are concerns on both sides, concepts, conflicting, opinions, all these worth pondering.

When we hear about Flying Saucers, or pay attention and smile a little skeptical, but is there any reality in all this? It does not seem to me in any way that our planet Earth is the only inhabited planet.

When someone studies the ARRENHIUS theory of panspermia discovers with mystical surprise that the germs of life come from other worlds. ARRENHIUS' theories are truly interesting.... this is because we all come from the stars.

Our earth itself as an inhabited world, a world that goes around the sun is a planet like any other of infinite space. The law of philosophical analogies invites us to suppose that if the Earth is inhabited, there should be, in the infinite space, also other inhabited worlds. I do not believe that the seeds of life were unique universal heritage of planet earth; I think the exclusivity in this regard is regressive, reactionary.

I invite you to think that if we are fighting for the conquest of space with our rockets traveling at remarkable speeds, it is possible that other existing worlds are also in the same fight, I would not discard the idea of existing extraterrestrial people, inhabitants of other areas which have already conquered space. Believing we are the only ones in such a great cosmos composed of so many millions of worlds is too reactionary and exclusivist

Keep in mind that in the times of Columbus many people laughed at this wise man and great sailor when he embraced the his quest across the ocean beyond "Cabo de Finisterre"; back then in Columbus times it was believed that the Earth was flat and squared, therefore no one would believe there was life beyond "Cabo de Finisterre", which means the end of Earth. It seems to me that we are like those people at medieval times. When we deny the possibility of intelligent life in other worlds, we inevitably become antiquated, medieval, and anti-revolutionary.

We accept the possibility of life in other worlds ... spaceships are a reality, there are other inhabited worlds with more sophisticated beings that have already conquered this and other galaxies. I can give you reliable testimony, if I relied on mere intellectual cogitations, I would really have no basis to affirm the thesis of the worlds inhabited by alien people, if I based solely on pure intellectual concepts or formal logic and dialectic, to emphasize the idea of the existence of aliens, and I would not be more than just hypothetical.

I am a firsthand witness of the existence of extraterrestrials, I know them personally, in the flesh, and so I have no objection to giving testimony of it. If you believe me, it is great. If you do not believe it, it is okay. If you accept or reject this information it is up to you, in any case, I will give my testimony.

One day, no matter when it was, I was in Mexico when had the need to visit a forest called "lions' desert" to be in peace, even for a few hours. I was devoting myself to reflection when all of the sudden I was impelled to go to somewhere else in the forest, and there, deep inside the woods, not knowing why, I was led to a specific place; the truth is that there I found a huge spaceship on a steel tripod. I have to confess in the name of the truth that I felt completely confused and thrilled. Such find left me totally astonished. However, it was not it, a mechanical gate was opened and I saw a chief or captain getting off that ship followed by the crew members. I approached the leader and said hello.

He replied speaking perfect Spanish said "hello, good morning" and then, among the crew I saw two old ladies. I don't know how old they were. I am sure they had aged in other measures of time not our terrestrial times. I talked to the captain and said "Sir, I would like to know Mars, my whole soul, spirit, is connected to the everlasting world of infinite space, my MONADA, (speaking the LEIBNIZ way who was really concerned about the Monadas).

The captain remained silent; nevertheless after a few minutes he started speaking and asked: "Which Mars do you mean?" "I would like to know the planet Mars, if you took me there, I would be willing to leave now, and nothing would keep me in this planet". "Mars, that planet is right here. It is really close" he said to me. After that I realized, because of his tone, that what I had just asked did not required of a great effort from then, in spite of the fact that it seemed something great to me.

The truth is that what I asked was too simple for him. Through certain clues and personal perception I could understand that the magnificent spaceship which I had seen came from a mother ship that had been left in orbit around the Earth, in our solar system, known by the name of the solar system of Ors.

This system was in no way more special than any other of the many solar systems in the unalterable infinite. It is undoubtable; I was face to face with intergalactic travelers, people traveling from galaxy to galaxy, wise and conscious individuals.

I told them "I am a writer; I would like to be taken to other worlds with the sole purpose of writing and being a true witness before mankind of the existence of other inhabited worlds. "I'm a man, I told them no mere intellectual humanoid, and the request that I make to you is not for me, but for mankind general, I would like to join forces in any way to general culture of the world" I begged them and I presented my arguments to the chief captain, but he remained silent. I even held myself tightly to the steel tripod of the ship to remain there until they let me go with them. Nevertheless, my effort was in vain. I then examined that man and the whole crew who had coppery face, ample forehead, thin, and about 1.20 or 1.40 meters high.

The captain was holding something made of a metal in his hands, I really did not understand. The crew members sat on some logs that were lying in that area of the forest. The female members were two honorable old ladies. I couldn't do anything less but to contemplate such as intelligent, wise, respectful, and strange creatures to find no trace of evil.

I was able to note the sense of moral responsibility they had, they talked little because of high concept they have of the use of the use of the words.

They do not let speech flow like we do, they speak little but say much. For them words are like gold, treasure gold, they use them only when it is essential. I did not see a human killer instinct on them neither the evil plans some movies present in their stories, those strange creatures shined to the wisdom of love and power.

They are real men, I mean, men in the whole sense of the word. None of them wanted to kidnap me; on the contrary, I struggled too much begging them to take me with them. I am sure that if they had taken me, they would have, in some way, made of me a lab rat.

They are unlike humans. If we caught an alien, it would for sure end up in a laboratory and the spaceship would be confiscated to be used as a model to build other ships in order to bomb innocent cities, to take over other worlds and do as we please with them, just because we are humans, beginning by myself. We are awfully wicked; it is the truth of the matter. I did not come to wash up my hands before you and tell you I am a meek sheep. We all are the same in a way and the weaknesses I have, you have them too and vice versa.

Therefore, the witness I give you about those beings is sincere and honest; I am in no way trying to change my testimony or the truth.

At the end the crew members were sitting on the logs in that place, one of the ladies stood up in the name of all of them and said “If we put a plant which is not aromatic next to one that is, it will get impregnated with the scent of the aromatic plant” she continued and added “the same happens in the inhabited worlds that have struggled, evil beings, little by little were transformed through the influence of neighboring worlds, but us as, you can see, have just arrived in this planet and do not see this happening”, “What is happening to this planet?”

The question they asked was tremendous so I needed to give a high quality answer. Without thinking too much but taking care of my words I said “This planet is a God’s mistake” and then I added, trying to make myself clear. “This is the world’s Karma”. Karma is a word which means cause and effect. It is obvious that the Earth has some causes that make it exist and it is possible that if those causes are wrong, the effects have to be wrong too. When I said that “It was the world’s karma”, I saw with great amazement that the elderly lady who was talking to me agreed with me bowing respectfully before me and did not say anything just bowed, so did the whole crew. I was full of courage because I thought they were going to criticize me, what I was thinking trying to teach people who travel through galaxies, it was a terrible idea but it worked. They seemed to be pleased with my answer and it made me happy.

Of course I decided to get something out of it; it was the right time. Then I thought it was my chance so I asked them again to take me to another planet of the endless space to give testimony to my people of the existence of other inhabited worlds.

I told them “I am a writer, it is not for me. It is for mankind. “Take me with you” I said. However, my pleading was worthless and the silence awful.

At the end the captain said one thing, only one thing, because he speaks little but says a lot. He does not promise anything he is not going to do. They are not like us, Mexican, who make an appointment to meet someone at 9:00 am at a café to talk about something but does not show up until 11 or 12 pm. They are not like that. They do not talk much but they say much.

It seemed like if they were Gods in a man’s body. I had that impression as I was talking to them.

Now, I can’t deny I got an answer but it did not satisfy me; he said “in our way, we will see”.

I was truly disappointed because those words were like a cheap way to avoid me, like trying to get rid of me. It is like when someone goes to a job interview and the end he or she is told “we will keep you in mind in case of a new opening”, after something like this you get the feeling that there is something wrong and you know your request has been denied on the other hand I was talking to extraterrestrial beings. “In our way, we will see”.

What way did they refer to? To a mysterious narrow path that I and many others are follow, the path that leads to the supreme being, the straight narrow and difficult path Christ talked about, the mysterious way which DANTE walked, a HERMES TRISMEGISTUS, or a JESUS OF NAZARETH.

I walk that path; therefore, the words of the captain filled me with courage. We, then, shook hands before he got in the spaceship through a stairway. He was followed by the rest of the crew; I understood I had to leave so I did it because I did not want my body to vanish instantly due to the power of the ship.

The spaceship took off immediately and went up until it entered the infinite space leaving no trace or sound behind. I swear I am bearing witness about beings who have already conquered the universe, that is, extraterrestrial beings. I came to tell you the truth and nothing else but the truth, I did not come to give you a false testimony because I would not make anything out of it and neither would you.

I would make a fool of myself and commit the senseless crime of lying to my equals. No, I am sharing a testimony of the truth, of what I experienced firsthand with aliens.

If you believe me, that is great. If you do not, I do not care. If you laugh at me, it is on you. Anyway, “He who laughs at what he ignores”, said Victor Hugo in one of his works: “is on his way to become foolish”. I give you my testimony and you decide what to think.

There are beings that have already conquered the universe, but they are not from Earth, they are beings who come from other inhabited worlds.

I have come to the understanding that those who conquered the endless universe are virtuous; they have no vices. They do not consume alcohol or tobacco. They do not commit adultery or fornicate. They do not kill or steal. They are perfect as a whole.

I think to myself and tell you what I think: Do we have the same the same attributes they have? Are we even worthy of conquering the universe? What if we did it? How would we behave in other worlds? Can we assure we would not make turn them into our slaves?

Could we guarantee we would not go there to drink alcohol, smoke, commit adultery or other immoralities? Are we good enough to deserve to conquer the universe?

Now, their spaceships have many sizes, not only tridimensional, that is, length, width, and height. EUCLIDES' tridimensional geometry theory has been greatly discussed. This table, for example, has three magnitudes; length, width, and height. Nevertheless, there must be another measurement, a fourth dimension. What is it? I would say time. How long has it been since it was made? Moreover, there is a fifth dimension, eternity. Beyond the fifth dimension there must be a sixth one which is not time or a tridimensional measure. The fourth dimension is time, the fifth eternity but what about the sixth or the seventh one, what are they? The sixth one is beyond time and eternity but the seventh; as tradition says, is the zero dimension, the unknown, the sole spirit.

There is no shadow of doubt that there are seven basic dimensions: as long as we live by EUCLIDES' tridimensional claims, we will stay in a regressive state. Nowadays, modern physics is outdated because it is based in the fundamentals of Euclide's tridimensional claims.

Extraterrestrial ships are made using different geometric standards. I believe that we should come up with a geometric standard based on the atom. It is there where the fourth vertical is drawn.

If the day comes when we can draw a fourth dimension on paper, we can also create tetra dimensional geometrics, and with it we could make tetra dimensional ships capable of traveling through time, to the past or the future. With spaceships like those we could conquer the infinite space, but it is not possible for us to build them yet.

Nowadays, traveling to Mars in a modern rocket takes about two years but, according to the extraterrestrial beings that I met at "The Lions' Desert" it takes few minutes to them to get to Mars. They said "that planet is right here" like if they meant to say it is around the corner because they manage to align their ships to travel in a fourth vertical dimension. Such spaceships are propelled with solar energy whereas we use liquid fuel. Our astronauts need long hours of work and study as well as training to land on the moon which is not the case of these alien because for them landing on the moon does not require of a great effort.

This is why I see no reason to brag so much about our “modern civilization”.

I want to invite you for a moment to be humble and leave pride beside, to understand that we are just a seed with a long way to go.

Our so adulated advanced civilization is unworthy. I invite you to investigate deeply everything regarding the universe conquest.

We need to analyze, study, and understand that if we want to conquer the infinite universe, we have to analyze ourselves because within ourselves we can find the laws of the universe. If we do not discover the laws of the universe inside us, we will never find them elsewhere.

The men are in the Mother Nature and Mother Nature is in the men. So, as I said before, if we want to conquer the universe, we have to start by conquering ourselves.

We can say that we are victims of the circumstances; we have not learned to manage the challenges of life, neither have we learned to control them. We are drifted like the ocean wave which move from one way to another randomly by the power of the cosmos.

We live in a world that is fading away, a world of great calamities, earthquakes have moved from South to North America. One day, Chile was hit by tremendous earthquakes and sea-quakes, later Caracas, Colombian, and Honduras. It is not surprising that many of the cities of Mexico will be hit by earthquakes. San Francisco is vulnerable because there is a land layer fissure below the peninsula of California which is already being studied, a deep gap that is growing little by little and it will cause California to sink in the Pacific Ocean.

Our planet is exposed by countless disasters so it is necessary that we ponder about the state of our minds, our spirit, our civilization, etc.

The bottom of the Pacific and Atlantic Ocean are full of deep cracks. In the Pacific Ocean more than in the Atlantic, there are some gaps which are so deep that can expose the earth's fire to the water. The water goes through the land inside the earth where the liquid fire is and there the pressure of steam increases from time to time. Such pressure and steam are causing high scale earthquakes.

Ladies and gentlemen in short time you will find out that there is no place where you can be safe. Earthquakes and seaquakes tend to increase in magnitude due to the underground pressure and steam. The ice of the North Pole is already melting and soon the huge icebergs will move towards the Ecuador. In the South Pole, hot water is coming out of craters and this water is forming currents which penetrate to some places close to the Guinea.

There are changes inside the Earth, and if the pressure and steam continue increasing, its crust will burst. There is no doubt that any universal event will be enough to trigger such explosion. We are standing on a “time bomb” without knowing it. The Earth is getting ready for great geological changes.

The fire inside the earth is in distress, but we on the external layer of this world believe we are safe. We build mighty buildings thinking they will never fall down; we make powerful ships like if they would allow us to escape at a certain point. We feel strong enough to own the universe like if we were invincible, but an insignificant illness such a stomachache is enough to send us to bed.

We must consider and ponder about whom we really are, about what it is happening and about what it is going to happen.

During this century, there were two dreadful wars (from 1914 to 1918 and from 1939 to 1945) and there will be a third one which will be a nuclear war, then there will be a nuclear holocaust, mighty cities will be reduced to ashes and millions of people will perish.

The worst thing about it will be that the reckless use of atomic physics will lead us to a disaster. One day the atom will decay in a chain reaction, and then scientist will not be able to control the atomic energy. There is no doubt that the radioactive pollution will be awful, radioactive clouds will discharge water on the crops and will contaminate them.

Thus, during the third world war there will be no food because radioactivity will be impregnated in everything causing the death of the crops and the food will not be good to feed ourselves and our family. At this pace, we should not feel so sure about this civilization which is stumbling, our theories, concepts and ideas.

It is worth the effort we go over everything we have learned in school, through books and different authors. I am not trying to go against any theory or author. I am only trying to invite you to reflection and nothing else. It is the main aim of this talk.

There is a law known as the Law of Universal Entropy. If we take two containers filled with water, one containing cold water and the other hot one, and if we put them one next to the other we will see a waste of energy, and there you have the Universal Entropy. If people do not work on themselves, if they do not go through a kind of psychological revolution, if they do not change their habits and their way of living, they will follow the path of the Law of Entropy and in time they will go through a regression so that there will be no difference from person to person, we will all remain in an immoral state.

Concerning our planet, we cannot deny it is ruled by the Law of Entropy; the atmosphere is polluted, the oceans have turned into huge landfills, many ocean species are becoming extinct, in the rivers, fish are dying and it is hard to find a river which has not been contaminated. The fruits of the soil have been changed, with so many inserts it is now hard to find a pure apple, and we now eat “pear-apples”.

This is changing the universal order, the nature’s course, because of it there are unproductive parcels, these days (1977) the world population is of 4500 million people and food is not enough to feed them. In the next years, millions of people will die of starvation; even now many people are dying of it. The ground that once produced plenty of fruits is now unfertile. Experiments made with nuclear power and chemical fertilizers have spoiled the soil.

Everything is in a regressive or still state, the earth itself is in agony and the worst part of it is that we do not realize it. If a person is in agony, we have an idea of what is awaiting him or her; it is the same for our planet which is in pain, if we do not do something, it is obvious it will perish and become like a desert in other words an inhabited moon in the infinite universe.

The wisdom of the Supreme Being, the creator of the universe, is great. So, I have to insist that only through sacrifices we can make a change. For example, in a vehicle we need to spend fuel because if we do not there will be no energy to move it. The same can be said about the sacrifice we have to make in order to bring to pass the transformation of the world.

We also know that the axis of rotation of Earth is moving. It is not far the day when the Poles take the place of the Equator and vice versa. When it becomes a reality, the oceans will change of place so they will cover the whole earth.

There is no doubt that there will be chaos. As I said before, nowadays the ice in the North Pole is melting and it is going to cause stronger and stronger cyclones which are going to devastate entire cities just like the terrible cyclone that hit Honduras wreaking havoc.

In addition, the Earth's magnetic and geological poles have moved. That is, they are not where they used to be; for example, if an airplane flew directly to the North Pole led by a compass, and then landed exactly where the compass indicates the North Pole is, they would see that the geological pole is not there anymore.

The geological pole is moving towards the equator and since they are not aligned, there have been many weather changes and it is more noticeable some fluctuations in the temperature especially during the spring and summer. Is the destruction of this civilization definite? The worst is that we would disappear with it?

The ancient NAHUATL said "The children of the fifth sun, meaning us, will perish by fire and earthquakes". A good example of it, it is the catastrophe of Guatemala because not only did the ground shake but it continues to shake it that country. What is more, they will increase gradually.

Thus, mankind will perish by fire and earthquakes and finally definitely be wiped off the face of the earth by changing bed Oceans, More so, with those awful and dreadful sacrifices emerge one day chaos continents where new live a new humanity ... and once VIRGILIO, the poet of Mantua said, "and they came the golden age and a new a progeny sets forth rules".

If we are evil and make a nuclear war until we almost reach a total destruction of the human race, there will also be a day when a peaceful generation full of love, pure, wise and honest will live on Earth. And then, what? Well, only then we will overcome our immoral state that God calls "The fallen state".

We have been walking the path of perversion up to this point, so we have to perish therefore there have to be a new heaven and a new earth just as it was said by Peter in his epistle to the Romans "in it new people will reign.

If we took into account all this, we would realize that it is worth the fight for a major personal change and the establishment of a new order.

The other day someone told me: "I know myself sir." To which I replied: "I am glad you know yourself, so let me ask you the following question: how many atoms does a hair of your head have?" When he heard the question he remained silent and then said he did not know the answer to that question. Therefore, I told him "if you do not know how many atoms you have in a hair of your head; how do you dare to say you know yourself in a total or whole way. That man got confused and puzzled.

Within each of us there is more than the physical body, there is a revolutionary mind, so the body is not all. You feel attracted to the material; you agree you have a body of flesh and bones because you can touch it, but you hardly accept you have a soul because you can feel it with your physical hands. When someone accepts his nature, he starts to be different from others and has a higher chance to change.

It is obvious that some people will survive the destruction of the human race, that is, those who manage to live a change of mind ahead of time. Such people will be taken to a certain place by the Pacific and from there they will contemplate the fight of the water and the fire for centuries. At the end, when the new land emerges from the bottom of the sea, the people who made a change in their mind and heart will be able to live in peace and become the center of the future generations.

Before it happens we need to make a change through a self-analysis of our behavior, here is where the possibility a becoming new lays. We need to self-analyze our way of thinking, feeling and living.

I believe it is not a crime to suggest a whole change from our inner self. Issues within us such as jealousy and pride cause wars in the world. People talk about peace nowadays and as Mussolini used to say “Peace is an olive branch on the edge of eleven million bayonets” Listen to those words, what a shame. Peace is not about proselytism, forcing people to obey, or armies in favor of it. Keep in mind the armies sent by the UN to fight for peace. Do you believe it is the way it should be done?

In the world there will be wars as long as we keep within us those issues which cause them. Fear is a reason of world development of armory. If a man is afraid of someone, he will carry a weapon. Why? Because of fear. If he were not afraid, he would not be armed. If a nation is heavily armed with nuclear bombs, and a modern arsenal, it is because it is afraid to be attacked or invaded by other nations.

Fear to be hungry makes women become prostitutes and men become thieves. Therefore, if there is fear in us, there will be wars, prostitution, murders, and so on.

If we want to fight for peace, we have to eradicate the factors which cause wars. Do you want to have peace? Eliminate fear and egoism.

We cannot find peace if we only care about ourselves. It is a reason why nations fight; they do not care about anybody else. They look for their well-being and only their well-being.

Thus, peace is not about fights, proselytism, armies, OAS, or UN. As long as we keep within us those issues which cause quarrels, there will be wars. Peace is an inexplicable atomic substance beyond good or evil which comes from the Absolute Abstract Space.

It is essential that we analyze ourselves at this time of world crisis and loss of moral values. That is, we must reflect in our moral and psychological state.

This time, when the planet is suffering from earthquakes and other calamities, it is necessary that we ponder about our actual condition, about who we are, how we project ourselves, what we think, how we feel, and what we do. There is in us rage which lead us to madness, greed, and hypocrisy.

Among us, we can find lust which turns into us in animals. Greed has become the spring of social movement because if we see others have a nice modern car, we envy it and want to have one just like that or even better. If we hear that a friend bought a beautiful house to live in with his fine wife, we get jealous and desire to get something similar.

And if we want to pretend to be virtuous, we say "No, I'm not greedy, I am content with what I have, food, clothing and shelter and that's it", but inside burns the desire to earn fame, honors, prestige, money, etc. etc.,. Pride is corroding the heart of the people, each of us has a particular individual talent, but we ask too much of ourselves and that is not good.

We think many people are lazy and glutton but we are not. We think we are perfect but the truth is that inside us we have thoughts and feelings that lead to failure but even now when the world is in a crisis of moral values we must understand that those Psychological defects thoughts within us are like a devil or evil spirit.

When we read the four gospels of the Bible, we find a versicle which reads that the Great KABIR, Jesus of Nazareth, The Christ, cast seven devils out the body of Mary Magdalene. Those seven devils are the Capital Sins so if we multiplied them by seven and again by seven and so on, we would find that the Great KABIR cast a legion of spirits from Mary Magdalene's body.

VIRGIL, the Mantua's poet, said "Even if we had a thousand to speak and steel taste, we would never finish naming all of our defects in full." Therefore, Christians are right when they state that each of us is a legion.

If we said in a clear way that the I is not individualized but that it is part of a diversity, we would not be exaggerating about it; in us there is a "plural I" that is, the "I envy", "I love", "I hate", "I lust", ETC. All the multiples of "I" are inside us, here and now.

We are saying that within ourselves there are many psychological entities, and this properly proved; it is substantiated by the contradictions we have in our own minds. We are as soon confessing as denying; our mind is easily drifted away so we hardly stick to one idea or principle.

So, where do these psychological contradictions come from? The brain is not more than a tool of the mind, it is not the mind per se, it is made to process our ideas but it is not the idea. Let's think from deep inside where so many mental contradictions come from, where the "plural I" is.

Let's imagine each of our "I" had three brains; the intellectual, emotional, and the drive. Then, we could say that just as the tridimensional space of EUCLID exists there is also a Psychological space. There is no doubt that the mental multiplicity which emerges from us is part of a Psychological space within us.

Our physical senses are not capable of perceiving the psychological space. They can only be perceived by other senses. The psychological self-analysis sense is numbed so it needs to be strengthened through continuous use of it. When we manage to do so, the multiplicity of the "I" will be a reality and we will see and feel lively the Psychological space which I have told you about.

Each of us is a legion but our self-awareness is asleep, the intellectual humanoid is not capable of seeing, touching, and perceive the fullness of the Psychological space.

We need to do something because our self-awareness is lost among the "plural I" that in as whole constitute the "I", the myself. We have to get rid of those "I" which make us fall and make our own mistakes. It is possible through psychological self-analysis.

In real life we can Self-analyze us anywhere, at the workplace, at home, at the Street, or on a bus.

Compared with others our failures float even when we try to hide them and if we are alert like a watchman in times of war it will be easier to spot them.

Every personal defect detected has to be strictly judged by a superlative analysis of the being. In other words, the defect found must be studied and the destroyed.

Nowadays the mind cannot alter any defect; the mind can justify some mistakes, change them, move them from one department to another, or condemn them but never destroy them. We need a greater power than the mind, capable of extinguishing any defect. Fortunately, this power can be found deep inside the human's anatomy.

Moreover, I want to refer roughly to the ancient figure of gender and make emphasis on the mother of God, the beginning of love, the divine eternal woman, to be exact, the Heavenly Mother, KUNDALINI SHAKTI, STELLA MARIS, the Virgin of the sea. She is TONANTZI, REA, MARIA, SIBELES, ADONIA, ISOBERTA, DIANA.

God-mother lies in the depths of our being, is a fiery power that only the initiated can perceive the psychological sense of self observation. If you were to ask this igneous and divine power (which is a variant of our very being), we could perfectly disintegrate any psychological defect that we previously understood at all levels of the mind; weeping like a child cries when he is hungry or thirsty would also be enough.

Praying Devi Kundalini Shakti to destroy any "I defects" previously understood. This way, it would be reduced to cosmic dust, ashes, and release totally the restrained Superlative Mind of the Being.

A liberated conscience, emancipated, is able to see, touch and feel the great realities of Psychological Space, a liberated conscience is beyond the mind and they may well discover the reality of all phenomena occurring in the Universe.

I want you to know that there are three kinds of minds, the first might be called the "Sensual Mind", it elaborates its concepts of content with external sensory perceptions, and it does not know anything about the psychological space, reality, or God. IMMANUEL KANT, the philosopher of Konigsberg, wrote a book entitled "Critique of Pure Reason." The Kantian thought, with all its syllogisms and syllogistic figures, is formidable. Don Immanuel Kant's "Critique of Pure Reason", showed the world that "the sensual mind" cannot know anything about reality, truth, or God. This mind only develops content concepts with external sensorial perceptions; therefore it cannot know anything about the truth.

There is a second mind, the "Intermediate Mind", there all dogmas and religious beliefs are deposited. Everyone is free to believe what he or she wants, we, the Gnostics in any way will pronounce ourselves against the beliefs of others, we respect religion because we believe that religions are like precious pearls strung on the gold string of Divinity.

Religious beliefs are not direct perceptions of the truth, that is, the Sun exists whether we believe it or not. The Earth rotates around the King Star even if we do not believe it. in addition, the fire will burn our fingers every time we try to grab it with our bare hands. Thus, believing or stop believing does not necessarily become in truth.

Beyond the immediate mind is the "Inner Mind". Whereas the "sensual Mind" works through external sensory inputs, the “Inner Mind” works through precise inputs of the meaningful superlative conscience of the self being.

The Inner Mind, the superlative conscience of the self being, knows the truth, the mysteries of life and death, and the origin of life. This mind knows these things which are unknown to the Sensual Mind. While the Inner Mind knows where we come from, where we are going, what the meaning of life is and other things, the first mind cannot know the natural phenomena in it.

Let’s use a carnation as an example. The Sensual Mind says: "It's a carnation", but, who told that person the name of that flower. We were taught in school, at home, and by others; but are we sure it is the real name of that type of flower? I was told its name, yes, but who authorized them to name that flower? What is its real name? Are we perhaps the masters of universal wisdom to know which name the divine architect has given this flower?

In the Inner Mind everything changes. We say the real name of this flower is this or that and its components are these and those. At school or college we are taught the chemical formula of the same flower and then, we see in that flower the formula we were drilled in our minds even if we are not seeing the flower. Nevertheless, we are not seeing its real nature; we see what we were told to believe. I mean, we see in the flower what we learned at school but we do not see the flower.

Seeing the flower is different to knowing about it. We have to open our mind to hear the flower talking to us in order to be able to know it; in addition, we have to be more receptive. Yet, we are arrogant; we believe we are greater than a flower so we say; “It is a carnation and its chemical formula is this one” because that is what we were taught at school, but we only see that and not the very flower.

The conscience can see the flower. It can know its real name in the cosmos, true functionalisms and elements. The conscience can supply these elements to the inner mind and the inner mind can understand them.

Nowadays the only thing we can do with our sensual mind is to project those false ideas and concepts about the cosmos. No one can learn through the sensual mind about the universe and nature’s phenomena because life continuously flows and when we want to stop it, even for a moment, we kill it. Only with an aware conscience expressing itself through the inner mind can we know the sensible phenomena by itself here and now.

There are two types of science: Profane science and pure science: in pure science theories do not exist there are only facts.

If I told you that Earl of Saint Germaine, who lived in the fifteenth century, VXI, XVII, XVIII and XIX, etc., still lives, you would believe that I am mad.

Well, let me tell you that I know Earl Saint Germaine and I testify that he lives; he lives held up by a science that you do not know: the pure science, the science of the supreme being, science known by aliens who travel through the infinite space, the science of the lords of life and death, the science of those who have opened the Inner Mind.

We are just a part of the universal knowledge and that's it. However, we can awaken our consciousness by destroying undesirable elements that we carry within us. We can make a radical change to become true Super beings in the fullest sense of the word.

At this time of global crisis and bankruptcy of all moral principles, at these times of tsunamis and earthquakes. It would be worth the effort to explore ourselves, to try a psychological change of radical transformation, raise against all obsolete or extemporaneous concepts, to become true psychology revolutionaries, true rebels of intelligence; men capable to start a new civilization and a new culture.

Mahavatar Babaji

Saint Germain

Koot Humi

Regarding Earl Cagliostro, the Grand Master turned a political mission in Europe and wowed mankind.

This Grand Master was really who triggered the fall in the Kings of Europe. At heart, he was responsible for the Republic. He had lived during the time of Jesus Christ was a personal friend of Cleopatra, he worked for Catherine de Medici. He was known for several centuries in Europe. He used various names such as Joseph Balsamo, Count Cagliostro, etc..

India still lives in the immortal Babaji, the Yogi Christ of India. This instructor was Master of the Grand Masters who lived in the terrifying night ever. However, this sublime old looks like a boy of twenty-five.

We remind the Earl Zanoni, young despite thousands of years. Unfortunately this failed because Chaldean wise totally fell in love with an artist from Naples.

He made the mistake of binding to her and spilling the Glass of Herpes. The result was horrible. Zanoni died on the guillotine during the French Revolution.

(taken from "The Perfect Matrimony" Samael Aun Weor)

A Anahuac codex says: "The Gods created men wood and after having created the merged with divinity," but then added, "Not all men are able to integrate with the divinity."

Unquestionably, the first thing needed is to create man before we can integrate it with the real.

The intellectual animal mistakenly called man, in any way it is man.

If we compare man with the intellectual animal, then we can verify for themselves the concrete fact that the intellectual animal, although physically resemble men, psychologically it is absolutely different.

Unfortunately, everyone thinks erroneously supposed to be men, are described as such.

We have always believed that man is the king of creation, the intellectual animal, to date this has not proved to be even King himself, if not king of his own psychological processes, if you can not direct them at will, much less may govern nature.

In any way we could accept the man become a slave, unable to govern themselves and become the plaything of the bestial forces of nature.

O King of the universe or not it is, in the last of these cases unquestionably demonstrated the concrete fact had not yet reached the state of man.

Within the sex glands of the intellectual animal has deposited the Sun germs to humans.

Obviously, these germs can develop or permanently lost.

If we want such germs are developed, it is essential to cooperate with the effort that the sun is doing to create men.

The real man must work intensively with the evident purpose of removing from himself the undesirable elements that we carry within.

If the actual man himself not eliminate such elements fail unfortunately, would become an abortion of the Cosmic Mother, in failure.

The man who truly work on himself in order to awaken consciousness, may be integrated with the divinity.

Ostensibly, integrated solar man with divinity, and effectively becomes its own right in SUPER-MAN.

Not as easy to get to SUPER-MAN. Undoubtedly, the road leading to the SUPER-MAN is beyond good and evil.

SUPER-MAN is like the spark that falls on the wicked or the brightness of something that is not understood and is then lost in the mystery.

SUPER-MAN is neither holy nor evil, is beyond holiness and wickedness, but people would describe as holy or perverse.

SUPER-MAN shines for a moment in the darkness of this world and then disappears forever.

Any Resurrected Master has extraordinary powers over fire, air, water and earth.

Undoubtedly, Resurrected Masters acquire not only psychological but also bodily immortality.

Jesus, the Great Kabir, still lives with the same physical body he had in the Holy Land, the Count St. Germain transmuted lead into gold and diamonds made of the highest quality for the XV, XVI, XVII, XVIII, etc., yet still lives.

The enigmatic and powerful Count Cagliostro, which so astonished Europe with his powers during the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, is a Resurrected Master and still retains the same physical body.

ARRHENIUS

Svante August ARRHENIUS , Swedish physicist and chemist (1859_1927) Great scientist, his work encompassed very different fields together, among which are various theories on various topics, emphasizing the first observation of the greenhouse effect in the atmosphere and a theory that sets the origin of the life on earth as a result of transport through space and due to the radiation pressure of spores from remote regions of space (panespérmi-ca theory).

Also studied the influence of temperature on chemical reactions, where he developed the equation that bears his name. For his work on the ionization of electrolytes, which can interpret the physical laws of electrolysis, was awarded in 1902 the prestigious medal Davy of the Royal Society of London in 1903 the Nobel Prize in Chemistry in 1911 the Gibbs Medal U.S..

Among his works Treaty of cosmic physics (1903) and theories of chemistry, Earth and Universe.

Dante Alighieri

(1265 –1321) was an Italian poet. His masterpiece, the Divine Comedy, is one of the key works of the transition from medieval to Renaissance thought. It is considered the masterpiece of Italian literature and one of the top works of world literature.

The Divine Comedy was written between 1304 and 1321, is summarized in her entire medieval cosmology by presenting the path of the soul of Dante, guided first by Virgil and later by Beatriz in the atonement of their sins in three songs: Hell , Purgatory and Paradise. With vivid language and richly expressive, the poet mixes the symbolic elements with references to historical and mythological characters, to build a balanced and grand synthesis of knowledge accumulated by men from classical antiquity to the Middle Ages.

EUCLID

(330 a.C. - 275 a.C.) Greek mathematician. It is the most famous mathematician of antiquity. It is known as the "Father of Geómetry".

Euclid was the author of several treatises, but his name is primarily associated with one of them, the Elements, rivaling its dissemination to the most famous works of world literature, like the Bible or the Quijote. It is essentially a compilation of works from previous authors, that immediately surpassed by its general plan and the extent of its purpose.

It is presented in a formal way, based only on five postulates, the study of the properties of lines and planes, circles and spheres, triangles and cones, etc.. Namely regular forms, all based on the three basic dimensions to recognize the bodies: height, width and length.

Euclid's theorems are usually learned in the modern school.

The three-dimensional Euclidean geometry, as well as being a powerful tool for deductive reasoning, has been very useful in many fields of knowledge, for example in physics, astronomy, chemistry and of course in math.

IMMANUEL KANT

(1724 –1804) was a German philosopher who is considered one of the most influential thinkers of modern Europe and of universal philosophy.

In 1781 he published the Critique of Pure Reason, which is human knowledge base and set limits. This work is generally described as a turning point in the history of philosophy and the beginning of modern philosophy.

Developed a whole system when he published his Critique of Practical Reason (1788) which establishes the need for an a priori moral principle, called by the "categorical imperative."

Kant tried to unify both "Critiques" with a third, the Critique of Judgment (1790) studying the so-called aesthetic enjoyment and purpose in the field of nature. When man intervenes, the aesthetic judgment is, when the end is a function of nature is teleological judgment. In both cases speak of a common root, linked to the idea of freedom.

Despite its complexity and tight, texts of Kant operated a real revolution in the philosophy of his time, whose effects reach today.

KUNDALINI SHAKTI

Also expressed as "Devi Kundalini Shakti" or Divine Mother Kundalini.

In the context of Hinduism, the Sanskrit word Shakti means energy or active power of a DEVA (male god), personified as his wife.

Originally, all female deity of Hinduism has been called DEVI and has been associated with fertility, then every Devi and power has been understood as shakti. In the context of Hinduism, kundalini is an unseen energy represented by a serpent sleeping coiled in the Muladhara (first chakra, which is located in the area of the coccyx).

For a long time related to the Kundalini, as power was a reserved or secret knowledge, but all traditions and religions refer to it with some symbolism. But the birthplace of the concept of Kundalini in Hinduism is the personified as a female goddess or Shakti immaculate, energetic power of our Spirit. She is depicted as a serpent sleeping coiled three and a half times, which gives it its Sanskrit name.

Yogis say: "His own Kundalini is nothing but his own SPIRITUAL MOTHER. You're her only child. She can not hurt or harm but devote little by little, to cure your own physical body and repair your chakras "When the Initiate invokes the Divine Mother Kundalini, to help, she appears as a Virgin Purisima, as a Mother of all worship. In it are represented all our Mothers of all our incarnations.

Mother Kundalini is the serpent of fire that rises through the medullar canal. The Mayans and Toltecs produced a whole cosmogony around her.

Among the Egyptians the Virgin is Isis. Among the KALI Hindustani in its positive aspect. Among the Aztecs is TONANTZIN. She is REA, CIBELES, MARIA, Adonia.

Diana among the Greeks and the Virgin Mary in Christianity have also been ways to represent it.

In all cultures and in all ancient religions there is always a Spiritual Mother.

LEIBNIZ

Gottfried Wilhelm von LEIBNIZ, (1646 -1716) German philosopher and mathematician.

It was one of the great thinkers of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, and was recognized as "The last universal genius". He made deep and important contributions in the areas of metaphysics, epistemology, logic, philosophy of religion, as well as mathematics, physics, geology, jurisprudence and history.

It occupies an equally important in the history of philosophy and the place of mathematics. He invented infinitesimal calculus independently of Newton, and his notation is the one used since.

He also invented the binary system, foundation of virtually all modern computer architectures. It was one of the first European intellectuals who recognized the value and importance of Chinese thought and power of China and from all points of view.

physics extension, Leibniz defended physical energy, as this is what makes possible the movement.

The last elements of the reality are MONADS elements of a spiritual nature, capable of perception and activity, which can range from simple to complex, have multiple attributes, each of which receives its assets and cognitive principle of God, who in the act of creation established a harmony between all monads.

MÓNADS

It refers to each of the indivisible substances of different nature, endowed with will, that make up the universe, according to the German philosopher Leibniz, who claimed: "monads are spiritual entities."

In Greek philosophy is a term that means "unity", used in different ways by ancient philosophers from the Pythagoreans, Plato, Aristotle and Plotinus to signify a variety of entities, from a basic unit to God. Generally refers to the divine spirits in different categories.

In Gnosticism the Monad is the most basic aspect of God, ie the spirit immanent in every being. By extension in humans, refers to that from which originates the human soul, the "Father who is in secret," the God Within, the Intimate.

So makes sure that every human being has his own deep inner Real Self and “there are so many parents in heaven as men on Earth”.

Syllogism

The syllogism is a form of deductive reasoning consisting of two propositions as premises and one conclusion, the latter being a necessarily deductive inference from the other two.

If the difference between judgment and proposition establishes the relationship between the terms of a trial, when compared with a third party makes "average" makes possible the emergence of possible conclusions.

Thus, the syllogism consists of two trials, major premise and minor premise, in which three terms, of which comparison is comparing a new trial conclusion is obtained.

The logic is to establish laws guaranteeing that the truth of the trials compared (premises) can be obtained with guaranteed real truth a new trial (concluded).

The syllogism was first formulated by Aristotle.

Virgil

(70 a.C.-19 a.C.) It was a Roman poet, author of the Aeneid, Bucolics and Georgics.

After writing several books, the poetry of Virgil peaked when he faced the task of writing an ambitious patriotic poem the image of the great Homeric epics, the Aeneid, in which he sings the virtues of the Roman people. For twelve years he worked in the composition of this his masterpiece epic poem comprising twelve songs.

The line of Virgil's Aeneid was considered in his own time, and from then on, as a model of literary perfection both its metric balance as its musicality.

In a first stage influenced by Epicureanism, Platonism evolved into a mystical, so production is considered one of the most perfect synthesis of spiritual currents of Rome.

The popularity he enjoyed was huge not only in his time, but throughout the Middle Ages, which saw him as an early Christian, and even got to see one of his Bucolics a prophecy of the coming Messiah. In his Divine Comedy, Dante made him his guide through Hell and Purgatory, and i considered him his master.
